"Entered as second class matter April 15, 1940, at the Post Office, at Dayton, Ohio, under the Act of March 3, 1879."

For wills and bequests, the legal title of the corporation is "The University of Dayton; Dayton, Ohio."

Published Quarterly for the University of Dayton Alumni Association by the Public Relations Office, University of Dayton, 300 College Park Avenue, Dayton 9, Ohio.

Subscription price $2 per year.

IN THIS ISSUE . . .

WE'RE a little late getting to you with this issue of THE ALUMNUS. With homecoming later this year than in the past and with this issue traditionally turned over to homecoming, publication date was pushed back a few weeks. We'll resume early-in-the-month publication with the December number

Pepper Wilson's "50 Years of Football" story was one of the last of his writings as a UD staffer. He resigned as director of sports information in June to become public relations director for the Cincinnati Royals pro basketball team. We think you'll enjoy his history of football at SMI, SMC and UD

On page 19, we've reprinted a few letters to the editor—a feature we'd like to make a regular part of the magazine. If you have any comments on topics you feel would be of interest to fellow alums, drop us a few lines for the letters column

My dear Alumni and Alumnae:

Again it is my pleasure to address a few words to you, the "old boys and girls" of the University.

At this time of the year our thoughts are naturally turned to the annual Homecoming Day and the joy of meeting all of you again. I wish to extend to all of you a cordial, gracious, and sincere invitation to visit your Alma Mater on this occasion.

There are so many things that I would like to write about but space does not permit it. We shall save all the news until we meet you in a few months.

The present faculty and students are extremely grateful to you, the graduates of the past, for your continued interest in and support of the University.

May Almighty God and His Blessed Mother keep all of you in good health, may They prosper your endeavors and accomplishments, and may your lives perpetuate the lessons which you have learned in daily contact with Them.

Sincerely,

Andrew L. Seebold, SM

50 YEARS OF FOOTBALL

By Pepper Wilson

THEY CALLED IT RUGBY . . . and in the beginning it was banned.

When the weather proved too rough and raw for baseball in 1904, the senior students of St. Mary's Institute—so history tells us—"bought a rugby football and commenced practice."

Apparently the practice was as rough as the weather, however, because school authorities soon banned the sport. But, in 1905, the "rugby mania took a mighty hold on all students" and restrictions were lifted.

The SMI Regulars were formed with the late William Schoen as captain, manager and left halfback. Three games were played that fall of 1905 as SMI, fore-runner of the University of Dayton, launched its modest football program.

The SMI team lost its opening game 6-5 to the Riverdale Athletic Club despite Red McKenny, SMI right end's "magnificent run of 80 yards, bringing the ball within five feet of Riverdale's goal" from where "a mass play followed, Schoen being pushed over the line for the first touchdown." McKenny, however, failed to kick the extra point and Riverdale's right halfback, Nuess, ultimately scored and kicked the winning point.

SMI played a team from Tippecanoe City (now Tipp City, just north of Dayton) in a home-and-home series, with SMI losing the first game 11-0 and the second 36-5.

Thus SMI had to wait for the opening game of its second season, 1906, to register its first football victory as it defeated Germantown, 29-0, and went on to win five and lose one game with one of its conquests being a 36-0 victory over Wittenberg College, its first collegiate opponent.

Dr. James C. Freshour, who had refereed SMI's first game in 1905, took over as the school's first coach in 1906.

The line-up of that first team fielded by SMI in 1905 was: Floyd Foster, LE; Joseph Mayl, LT; William Kroemer, LG; Paul Wenigman, C; Charles Schaefer, RG; Earl Smith, RT; Pat McKenny, RE; William Ryan, QB; William Schoen, LH; Bernard Topmoeller, RH, and Rex Emerick, FB.

Later, the first season roster included Clem Rosenbach, RT; August Waarich, LG; Louis Clark and William Irwin, LT; Leonard Mulligan, LH; John Monnig, RG, and Thomas Graham, RE.

Through the years, SMI's schedule continued to grow, both in number of opponents and in caliber of opposition. The nickname Regulars was replaced by Saints, and as the seasons progressed the institution's teams were known as the Hilltoppers, South Parkers, Red Devils, and just plain Varsity.

SMI became the University of Dayton in 1921, and in 1923, at the suggestion of Bro. Charles Arns, SM, adopted the name Flyers—a logical selection since Dayton, home of the Wright Brothers, is the home of aviation.

A number of "national" figures as well as prominent local men directed the Dayton football fortunes from 1906 until 1922. From the national scene were Nelson Talbot, later a brigadier-general in the U.S. Army, and Rollie Bevan, late head trainer at West Point.

Besides Dr. Freshour, other coaches included Orville Smith, Louis "Foosse" Clark, Charles Way, Van F. Hill and a prominent Dayton athletic figure, Harry Solimano.

The school's first spring football practice was inaugurated in April, 1922, under Charles Way and the first frosh football squad was formed in 1926 with Armin Mahrt as coach.

FOOTBALL CAME OF AGE AT UD in 1923 with the appointment of Harry C. Baujan, a Knute Rockne product, as head coach. A new era was launched in which the Flyers became one of the nation's outstanding small college teams. In its new football stadium in 1925, UD defeated John Carroll University of Cleveland 17-0 in a dedication game witnessed by Rockne who had coached both Baujan and his assistant, Arthur "Dutch" Bergman, at Notre Dame.

From 1923 until 1942, Baujan fielded respected, feared, winning teams at UD. Football was discontinued during the 1943-'44-'45 seasons because of World War II, but the Flyers returned to the gridiron for a 6-3 season under Baujan in 1946.

With Baujan as coach, UD won 124 games, lost 64 and played eight ties. In 1947, he retired from coaching and became the school's first full-time athletic director.

Joe Gavin, later slain by a berserk gunman in a Dayton bank, became the second of four straight Notre Dame graduates to coach at UD (Gavin's 1951 team became the University's only bowl team. The Flyers dropped a 26-21 decision to Houston University in the Salad Bowl at Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 1, 1952.)

Hugh Devore, now chief of the pro Philadelphia Eagles, headed the Flyers in 1954 and 1955, and Bud Kerr became the fourth Notre Damer to take charge, moving in for the 1956 season.

The University is a member of the NCAA but has no sectional league ties. The Flyers' stepped-up football program has brought advancement to the "major college" bracket as determined by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau (NCAB) and the Football Writers Association of America.

UD was elevated to the major ranks last year and this fall moves into its second season as a "major." The football record from that first team of 1905 through the 1956 season included 401 games of which the Flyers won 235, lost 151, and tied 15.

The 1957 team will be the 50th the school has sent into competition. This, then, is the Golden Year of football at UD—a sport that was banned almost before it was started.

Pessimistic Tom: His Usual Self

Ever-pessimistic Tom Blackburn is his usual self this fall. He isn't looking for a world beater. Instead, he says: "We are rebuilding again."

He has a point. For one thing, there are three sophomores who may be in the starting lineup against Morris Harvey December 4. For another, the Flyers won't be as big as they usually are.

Looking at the possible starting sophomores, we find that Terry Bockhorn, Arlen's brother is 6-2; Frank Case is 6-2 and Joe Kennelly is 6-8. Kennelly figures to be the only "big" man in the opening cast. Arlen Bockhorn, starting his third season, is 6-4, while Don Lane, whom Blackburn says will be one of the country's better backcourt men this winter, is only six feet.

Case was the leading scorer for the freshman team last winter. He tallied 488 points for 21.2 average on a combine which won 16 and lost eight. Kennelly was the second highest point-getter with 305 tallies or a 13.3 percentage. Terry Bockhorn played only 12 of the 24 games but managed a 15.2 average, or 182 markers.

Lane, despite his size, was third in scoring on the well-balanced varsity club last winter. His improvement was steady during the 1956-57 campaign and Blackburn will bank heavily on him for the team direction this coming season.

Arlen Bockhorn's point-making will be important in the early stages of the campaign. He is the big man with experience. If he can up his 11.8 average by four points, Blackburn's task will be a little easier during the December competition.

There is a strong possibility that 6-8 Mike Allen will break into the starting lineup. Blackburn hasn't decided on his starting pivot man but the battle for the center spot will be a two-pronged affair between Kennelly and Allen.

Jack McCarthy, 6-5 and a dependable sub last season, will figure highly in the early season skirmishing. If the sophomores do not develop, McCarthy more than likely be on the floor at the opening whistle.

A third Bockhorn, Harold, will be ready for action this season and there could be three Bockhorns on the floor at the same time.

Paul Shafer, Ray Atherton and Dick Bogenrife are the other varsity veterans still on the squad. Another important sophomore aspirant is Hank Josefczyk.

Jim Lavanche, new Flyer assistant football coach, comes to us from Emory & Henry College in Emory, Va. He also is phys. ed. teacher.

Joe's Jottings . . .

Hi. Not many of you know me. I'm new here. Got my job because Pepper Wilson is now Peeping in Cincinnati for the Royals, a professional basketball team. Oh, yes, my name is Joe McLaughlin. Hope we get to know one another well . . .

Might be well for me to tell you from the outset that our Golden Year football press book, with some extra special background and history on your school's football program, is now available for 60 cents. Remember? We told you about it in the June issue . . .

Hey, you might not believe this but good old Humphrey, or I should say Junior Norris, has lost 30 pounds since his basketball-playing days at UD . . . no, he isn't sick. Far from it. He's still a robust baseball player and pretty good radio announcer, too . . . Carmen Riazzi, last winter's basketball captain, visits his friends frequently these days. He's an insurance agent for the Central Assurance Agency in Dayton . . . Last we heard from Vic Kristopaitis, the punter extraordinary of last fall's football team, he was hanging on the San Francisco 49ers camp. He writes that big Leo Nomellini, former All-American center Minnesota, can't pronounce his name so calls him: "Kilpatrick."

Say you Clevelanders might like to take in the Cleveland Browns - Washington Redskins' pro game Sunday, November 3. Our Flyers' band, 60 men strong, and 25 marching co-eds will perform at that game . . . Jim Palmer, one of our ex-basketball players, was in recently. He's staying amateur. He's going to play and work for the Caterpillar Tractor Co. of Peoria, Ill., one of those strong AAU teams . . .

We're going to be looking for you at Homecoming, November 9, against North Dakota State. Big doings planned for that day in Our Golden Year of football. We know Jim Brown of New York and the Farrells of Orange, N. J. are coming. How about you?

Our University of Dayton Flyers' 60-man band, directed by Maurice Reichard, and complete with 25 Marching Coeds, will entertain the fans between halves of the Cleveland Browns-Washington Redskins pro football game at Municipal Stadium, Cleveland, November 3.

Staff Members Celebrate Golden, Silver Jubilees

FIVE members of the University of Dayton faculty and staff this year marked significant anniversaries as Marianists.

They included golden jubilarians Bro. Thomas J. Price, '11, professor of English, and Bro. Michael B. Grandy, '16, professor of physics, both of whom pronounced their first vows as members of the Society of Mary Aug. 31, 1907.

Celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversaries of their vows were Bro. Cletus C. Chudd, '35, associate professor of chemistry; Bro. Jerome A. McAvoy, '36, until recently University comptroller, and Bro. Edward Prochaska, director of buildings and grounds.

The Alumni Association of the University of Dayton extends its congratulations to these men who together have given 175 years of dedicated service as Apostles of Mary.

Get Set Alums . . .

THE red (and blue) carpet is out. It'll soon be homecoming time again.

And all you members of the classes of '32, '47 and '52 (and of course the "old-timers" from '07)—this is your year. Come Nov. 9, the campus is yours.

Not only the anniversary classes, but all UD, SMC and SMI alumni are being invited back to the hilltop for the weekend celebration.

Each year, homecoming gets bigger and better. Here's what is planned for you this year:

- An informal coffee-drinking, get-reacquainted session in the cafeteria beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing 'till noon;
- The colorful, spectacular parade through downtown Dayton featuring

THE BIG WEEK END'S A-COMIN'

bands, marching groups and upwards of twenty-five floats, built by students around a "fairy tales" theme;

- Following lunch, the Flyers' clash with the North Dakota State Bisons—a new-comer to the UD schedule—in a game that promises to give returning grads plenty of thrills, particularly in this, the fiftieth year of UD football;

- The crowning of the 1957 homecoming queen by the president—a regal occasion accompanied by performances by the Marching Band and Coeds and the Flyettes;

- In the especially-decorated-for-the-event fieldhouse, the president's evening reception where the chill of the afternoon is banished and good fellowship prevails;

- Afterwards, the annual banquet and alumni association meeting — excellent food, introduction to all of the anniversary classes, installation of new members on the alumni board of directors;

- Continuation of the social hour till the wee hours;

- The solemn portion of the week end—the annual Memorial Mass in the Chapel of the Immaculate Conception offered for deceased members of the alumni association.

Now don't forget that date—Nov. 9. See you then!

HOW ABOUT A FEW MEMORIES from the days when this year's anniversary classes were busy on the campus completing their work for that degree . . .

1931-32 . . . Enrollment, 605 . . . John Connolly was class president, editor of the UD News, won the president's debating cup and was valedictorian . . . Art Routzong was also an editor of the News and the Daytonian . . . Dick Frankenstein, Bob McBride and Bill Hoefler wrote "Gypsy Moon," the musical comedy given at the Art Institute which was "a complete success, financially and artistically" . . . The football team compiled a record of five wins, three defeats and one tie; the golf team won the Ohio Intercollegiate title, and the basketball team finished the season with a 3-12 record . . . Cato's Vagabonds played for the senior farewell at the Greenwich Village club in May . . . Barry Dwyer edited the annual municipal report of the city of Dayton and was salutatorian at the commencement . . . Ohio Governor George White was principal speaker at that commencement . . .

1946-47 . . . Leland Schmidt was class president . . . Jim Whalen headed the student council and edited the UD News . . . Football was resumed after a three-year absence during the war—record for the season: 6 and 3 . . . The basketball team won four, lost 17 . . . Harry Baujan became athletic director, Joe Gavin took over football and Leonard Thomas Blackburn was hired as basketball coach . . . The business annex, chemistry annex and student union building went up . . . A new cafeteria in the basement of Chaminade Hall opened . . . Registration was 1,844 . . . Joe Mori was president of CABOS . . . Eleanor Kurtz was a member of the CWO board . . . Bert Heckel was president of the debating society . . . John Westerbeide headed the Math club . . . King Bradow edited the Exponent . . . Don Butler gave the valedictory in June and Judge Edwin G. Becker was principal speaker . . . Frank M. Tait was awarded an honorary degree of Doctor of Science . . .

1951-52 . . . Bill Kehl was class president, Jack Bramlage was student council president . . . Bill Huth edited the Exponent . . . The football team won seven, lost two, then went on to the Salad Bowl . . . The basketball Flyers won 24, lost three, then went on to the NIT, beating NYU, St. Louis and the Bonnies, losing in the finals to LaSalle . . . the baseball team turned in a perfect 8-0 record . . . Pete Boyle and Mary Ellen Nagle were king and queen of the Senior Farewell at Lakeside . . . Charlie Brandt was valedictorian as the 379 members of the class received their degrees in June . . . Dr. Howard Bevis, president of The Ohio State University, was principal speaker . . . James M. Cox, Edward A. Deeds and Charles F. Kettering were awarded honorary degrees . . . FOR ALL OF YOU, it's been twenty-five, or ten, or five years since students days . . . Now's the time to come back . . . It's homecoming time . . . The big week end's a-comin' . . . Hope we see all of you Nov. 9!

Around the country . . .

MAY was a busy month for alumni chapters. Bro. Elmer Lackner, alumni director, traveled to Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Philadelphia, New Jersey, Louisville and Detroit, meeting with alumni, their wives and friends in a series of special gatherings.

Accompanied to several of the meetings by UD President Fr. Andrew Seebold, Bro. Lackner gave each group a brief report on the 1956 campaign for Wohlleben Hall and the science building, a report on other activities on the campus, and showed a color movie taken at last year's homecoming celebrating.

Cleveland's meeting took place at that chapter's fourth annual Communion breakfast which began with a Solemn High Mass in the St. Joseph high school chapel celebrated by Fr. Seebold, assisted by Fr.

ONE HUNDRED members of the class of '57 have subscribed to the University's first endowment fund program announced in the June issue of THE ALUMNUS.

Each of the group bought a $300 twenty-year endowment life insurance policy payable to the University. By 1977, these policies will amount to $30,000—a very commendable class gift.

A twentieth-year reunion will be held for the class at which time the subscribing

"Put away the free lunch, Daddy, here come the Brothers' boys!"

These excited words of warning by the daughter of a Brown street saloon keeper in the early 1900's remain fresh in the mind of one William T. Mahoney, SMI '07, who fifty years ago, with his classmates, was awarded his diploma in the old gymnasium and went on to make his way in the world.

It will be nostalgic memories such as these—some humorous, some sad—which surviving members of the class of '07 will be recalling these months as they prepare for the fiftieth anniversary celebration of their graduation from St. Mary's Institute, forerunner of the present University of Dayton.

That free lunch incident, according to Mr. Mahoney, went something like this: "I recall making field trips in civil engineering, generally in the vicinity of Oakwood Cemetery. If we got a chance, we would slip into one of the saloons on Brown street and with a nickel beer consume a dollar's worth of free lunch. Being the first one in the saloon on one occasion, I heard the keeper's daughter run in saying, 'Put the free lunch away, Daddy, here come the Brothers' boys!'"

Mr. Mahoney, retired since 1941 and living in Chattanooga, Tenn., also recalls among his fond memories of SMI days the hours spent on the basketball court:

"We played basketball in those days in our baseball pants and jerseys . . . After the successful 1906 season (successful financially, also), we thought we deserved shorts like the other teams were wearing, but Fr. Meyer, the Provincial, ruled them indecent . . ."

MR. MAHONEY IS ONE of a number of the class who plans to return to the campus Nov. 9 for the group's fiftieth anniversary. Who are some of the other members of the class? In Dayton, there are Earl Smith, an engineer at Wright-Patterson Air Force base; Frederick Bradmiller, a retired pattern maker; John Hampel, a retired electrician; Harry Solimano, an attorney with offices in the Reibold Bldg., who in later years coached four seasons of UD basketball, producing two undefeated teams; Joseph Ferneding, now also retired; Ed Hanbuch, an accountant at the Sucher Packing Co., and Charles Whalen, retired attorney and businessman. In other parts of the country are Paul Wenigman, in River Forest, Ill., who works with the City of Chicago; William Irwin, now in Buffalo, N.Y.; William Kroemer, retired and now living in Houston, Tex.; Bro. Tom Poitras, SM, now teaching at the Marianist Preparatory school in Beacon, N.Y.; Arthur Regan, a tool sales engineer in South Bend, Ind.; John Zuber, in Columbus, O., and E. J. Wright, of Fostoria, O.

Several members of the class are deceased and will be remembered particularly in the Memorial Mass to be offered on Sunday of the homecoming week end. They include Lawrence Janzen of Cincinnati; Daniel Moran of Lima, O.; William Schoen of Chicago; Aloysius Schaefer of Dayton, and Fr. Clement Wulf of St. Louis, Mo. We have lost contact with William Obermeier, originally from Louisville, Ky., and famed athlete Rex Emerick, who at last word was residing in South Milford, Ind.

WHEN THE LIVING MEMBERS of the class get together in November, plenty of reminiscing, such as that of Mr. Mahoney, will be taking place. They'll recall, for instance, the "day scholars' lawyer," Fr. Canning, who went to bat with the president for the group whenever they stepped off the straight and narrow; their life on the campus ("One thing that stays with me from that time to now is that when I awake in the morning I say 'Deo Gratias' in answer to an imaginary prefect's bell and 'Benedicamus Domino,' " says Mr. Wenigman); "the wonderful school, the outstanding teachers, the tough discipline, the long hours, the serious work and serious play that together helped to build character and develop mind and body," as Mr. Whalen recalls. Some of those outstanding teachers whom members of the class will well remember include Bro. Adam Hoffmann ("Boy, he was a teacher," says John Hampel emphatically), Bros. Tom Carr, Pete Schlitz, George Hart, Lawrence Drufner and Henry (Porky) Hemmert, and Frs. Frische, Tragesser and O'Reilly.

And they'll recall, too, the commencement exercises at which they were awarded their diplomas. Mr. Whalen was salutatorian and Mr. Mahoney valedictorian. And they'll be reminded of the bright sayings describing each member of the class in the year-book published in 1907:

Bradmillar: "A proper man as one shall see in a summer's day."

Ferneding: "Too civil by half."

Hampel: "His heart was in his work."

Kroemer: "An affable and courteous gentleman."

Mahoney: "The center of our admiration."

Regan: "Deep-sighted in intelligences, ideas, atoms and influences."

Solimano: "Whate'er he did was done with so much ease, in him alone 'twas natural to please."

Smith: "I am a part of all I have met."

Wenigman: "Imagination rules the world."

Whalen: "I'm learning—great; in height—abbreviated."

THE '07 BUSINESS CLASS numbered seven, several of whom we hope will be back to the campus for homecoming. They include Hubert Braun of Chicago; Albert Goldcamp, secretary of Goldcamp Hardware in Ironton, O.; Arcadius Maher, a retired merchant in Greenville, O.; Bernard Maher, owner of the Maher Coal and Ice Co. in Defiance, O.; W. M. Neary, who's with the Standard Register Co. in Dayton; William Pflaum of Daytona Beach, Fla., and William O'Conner of Dayton, who died in 1955.

There were four members in the high school class of '07: Joseph Heim and Horace Sutter, both of Dayton; William Weber of Cincinnati and Walter Zuber of Columbus. These men, we hope, also will return for the Nov. 9 get-together.

WHEN ALUMNI REPRESENTATIVES CALLED on him at work in Dayton, Mr. Hanbuch expressed the wishes of the University in regard to the fiftieth anniversary celebration of the class of '07. Said Mr. Hanbuch: "I'm really looking forward to Nov. 9 . . . I hope the whole class of 1907—one hundred per cent—will return to Dayton for the occasion . . ."

That's our hope exactly. All the university is looking forward to seeing again "the old boys." Welcome back, after fifty years, golden jubilarians!

BOB HEISTERMAN

SAVES THREE FROM FIRE

ONE of the best stories about a UD alumnus in many a day occurred several months ago when Bob Heisterman, '53, saved three persons from a burning home in Dayton.

Though rather late, we feel the account, as told in the Dayton Daily News by Staff Writer John Gooch, bears retelling.

Headed "Man Describes Perilous Rescue," the story read:

"Driving by on his way to work, Bob Heisterman, 26, of R.R. 3, Brookville, noticed clouds of smoke and flame rising from the roof of the two-story frame house at 864 S. Euclid av.

"He asked neighbors if he might help and then went about saving the lives of two children and their grandmother.

"Heisterman said that he came by about 8:15 a.m. on his way to work as a student salesman at the National Cash Register Co. when he noticed the fire. Neighbors in front of the home told him that there were 'children in the house.'

"I tried to get in the front door, but the inside was too far gone," Heisterman related. 'I rushed around to one side of the house and noticed an old lady and two children on the roof.'

"Two unidentified men—one a cab driver — lifted me to the roof of the home. I picked up the children and dropped them into the arms of the two men below and then helped the woman get down. Then I leaped off,' Heisterman said."

Another two small children and a 66-year-old woman died in the fire.

members will designate how the University is to make use of the gift.

Prior to leaving the campus, the class elected its alumni officers. Chosen were Peter King, Ambridge, Pa., president; Harry Koerner, Willoughby, O., vice-president, and Joan Leff, Dayton, secretary and treasurer. All three were active in promoting the endowment fund.

The National Board, which encouraged the fund, hopes ensuing classes also will adopt such a plan.

THE PROPOSED REVISIONS of the constitution of the Alumni Association, presented to members during the summer for their consideration, will go into effect immediately. Though all ballots on the question had not arrived at press time, the trend was heavily in favor of the revisions which provide primarily for the addition of four members to the board of directors. Ballots for the election of the new directors will be in the hands of alumni soon (if not already). Installation of those elected will take place at the homecoming banquet Nov. 9.

WE HAVE ANOTHER honorary alumnus. He's Henry J. "Hank" Malloy, "a gentleman and one of the most outstanding ambassadors of good will for the University." Hank, father of three sons, all of whom are UD grads, was given the honorary title at the Montgomery County chapter's June dinner-dance.

BILL ENOUE, '52, accountant with Touche, Niven, Bailey and Smart in Dayton, and past vice president, is new president of the Montgomery County chapter. Bill succeeds Al Suttman, '48, two-term president, who becomes an honorary member of the board.

New vice president of the chapter is Jim Gilvary, '51, Kettering city attorney, who last year had been a member of the board.

Re-elected secretary-treasurer was Dee McAnespie, '51, secretary in the UD public relations department.

Named directors were Dick Beach, '52; Frank Doorley, '43; Dottie Foley, '55; Bill Hallerman, '52; Jimm Horvath, '52; George Humm, '40; Gene Jablinski, '51; Joan Leff, '57; Al Neff, '51; Barth Snyder, '31; Hank Troin, '52, and Ed Zweisler, '45.

Bro. Elmer Lackner and Alumni Secretary Mary Shay, '44, are honorary members of the board in addition to Suttman.

A total of 345 votes were cast in the election.

THE CHAPTER'S FIRST activity will be the annual Harvest Hop at Wampler's Barn Nov. 23. This year's hop will differ from those in the past in that the chapter hopes to make some money this time. Younger alumni seem to find homecoming banquets and the chapter's June dinner-dance too costly for their budgets. The Harvest Hop, with ticket prices held to an absolute minimum, will provide for the younger set an inexpensive evening. Al Neff and Dick Beach are co-chairmen.

Other chapter plans include the annual evening Mass Dec. 8 at which time the University presents the Marianist Award; a Communion breakfast in the spring; an information series for alumni and the general public, and the June dinner-dance. Ed Zweisler and George Humm will be co-chairmen for the Communion breakfast, with George Humm chairman for the information series and Jim Gilvary handling the dinner-dance.

LETTERS

Alumni are invited to write the editor on any topic pertinent to the University or the alumni association. Letters must be signed, though not necessarily for publication, and will be subject to condensing.

Disinterested Alumni?

To the editor:

I hear only about 400 of our alumni voted on the election of new officers for the Dayton chapter last spring. Seems like that is a pretty poor showing for an alumni group that has about 3,000 members.

What is the matter with the alumni? Why don't they take a little more of an interest in alumni elections and activities? They give pretty well to fund drives, etc., but when it comes to supporting alumni projects, they just don't come through. They are loyal to the University but they don't seem interested in the alumni association.

Also, I hope you will write-up in the magazine the results of the questionnaire you sent our class.

FIFTY-TWO-ER

(Ed. Note: See "With the Chapters," in this issue. Questionnaire referred to went to classes of 1932 and 1947 as well as 1952 and we hope to report on the results of all three in the December ALUMNUS.)

Most Cosmopolitan?

To the editor:

"... Incidentally, I noticed in the last issue of THE ALUMNUS you spent a great deal of time on families. Of course, some I remember and others I don't. I think they all should be complimented on their very fine and very large families. However, I challenge any former student at the University to meet the far-flung and international aspect of my family. I was born in Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. Nunn was born in Birmingham, Ala.; my oldest son, William A. III, student at the University of Wyoming, was born in Borger, Tex.; my second oldest son, a student at the Sullivan School, Washington, D.C., was born in East Cleveland, Ohio; my oldest daughter, a sophomore in high school, was born in Ft. Benning, Ga.; my other daughter, age 8, was born in Yokohama, Japan, and my youngest son, age 2, was born in LaChapelle St. Mesmin, France . . ."

THE UPPER REACHES . . .

U. D. Lacks Ghetto Attitude; Becomes Community College

By GEORGE WELDON

This week, officials of the University of Dayton will cement into place the cornerstone of the new Wohlleben chemistry and chemical engineering building. This building, in the strictest sense of the term, belongs to the people of Dayton—all of them. It is being built with funds raised through a public solicitation that was directed at all the people of Dayton, not just the Catholics, and not just the alumni of U.D.

THESE FUNDS were raised largely because the University of Dayton had proved that it considers itself Dayton's own community college. I know of a few ghetto-minded Catholics who resent this idea. By some perverted logic they seem to think that you cannot be a full-fledged member of the community and a full-fledged Catholic at the same time. They seem to think that, by becoming a community college, U.D. has ceased to be a Catholic College.

IN HIS PENETRATING study on American Catholics and the Intellectual Life, Monsignor John Tracy Ellis has said that some of the greatest faults of Catholic colleges are that they often are little more than seminaries for the laity, that they lack scholarship, and that they are narrow-minded institutions in which Catholics tend to wall themselves up, cut themselves off from the rest of the world, and talk to each other. This, he points out, is bad for the Church, the college, its students, and the community. An idea that is hiding away in a dark corner tends to stagnate; truth must be shared if it is to be effective.

IN ATTEMPTING to break away from the narrow pattern that Catholic colleges in general have fallen into (or forced into by the cultural pattern of the past century), the University of Dayton has placed itself among the most progressive Catholic colleges in the nation.

LAST YEAR I heard Father Andrew Seebold, S.M., president of U.D., tell a group of editors that when he first came to Dayton he told a cab driver to take him to the University of Dayton.

"There's no such thing as a University of Dayton," the driver answered. "Are you sure you don't mean Miami-Jacobs or Sinclair?"

WHEN FATHER Seebold finally got through to him, the cabbie's face lighted up. "Oh, you mean that little Catholic school up on the hill," he announced.

This indicated, Father Seebold said, that many of the people of Dayton visualized U.D. as having a wall of self-exclusion around it that was higher than any stone or brick wall in the city.

TODAY, with its Community Service Center, its expanded research program, and its ultra-co-operative attitude toward community problems and community projects, the University of Dayton has become a true leader in the community. It is truly the University of Dayton. And the community has responded with equal openness, particularly in U.D.'s recent fund drive.

BUT HAS THE UNIVERSITY compromised its Catholicity in any way? Has it attempted to divorce itself from the Catholic people of the community?

Every Catholic student who goes to the University of Dayton gets a religious training based on the Marianist tradition of education for responsible lay Catholic leadership. As a former faculty member of U.D., I was so impressed by the results of this training that I have filed away notes for a feature story on it later in the summer.

EVERY NON-CATHOLIC who goes through the University of Dayton spends four years studying under men whose lives are devoted to teaching spiritual values. These non-Catholics are genuinely impressed through their contacts with priests, brothers, sisters, and laymen.

They live as equals with Catholic students and form friendships with them—frequently such students have told me it is the first time they have really known Catholics.

The non-Catholic students are not proselytized or indoctrinated. But they certainly leave the university without any false or libelous concepts of the Church.

ABOUT A THIRD of U.D.'s day students and almost three-fourths of its night students are non-Catholics. The Catholic people of Dayton might do well to think for a few moments of the tremendous influence this fact might have in correcting misunderstandings about the Church and in breaking down prejudice.

THE CHURCH bears the name Catholic because its mission is to all men, and it is still in existence because in each age it adapts itself to current conditions of time and place. It is my belief that the University of Dayton, in reaching out to embrace the community, as it exists here and now, is more truly a Catholic college than many of the "seminaries for laity" that dot entirely too many hills on the American scene.
